N/A, West Glacier, MT

Welcome to Lake McDonald, the heart of Glacier National Park - where crystal waters mirror snow capped peaks and the spirit of Montana’s wild still feels untouched. Tucked along the west shore bordering private and National Park Land, this rare 25-foot by 350-foot parcel represents one of the last remaining slivers of private land from the historic Kelly’s Camp - a place woven deeply into the park’s early story. With 25 feet of pristine lake frontage, an access easement, and potential rights to a dock, this property offers an incredible opportunity to create your own base camp for adventure. While setbacks limit development, there is potential for a dry cabin or simple retreat - a peaceful foothold in one of America’s most breathtaking landscapes.
